Objectives

- a) define the design and management adaptations that very high density orchards require in the main pedoclimatic areas of the territories of the Apulia Region;
- b) realize dissemination tools for industry players that combine the collection, critical reprocessing and synthesis of simple information, experiences and experiments carried out locally, in the project, and/or worldwide on the AS;
- c) establish a solid and widespread competence in the territory by farmers and agronomists concerning the design and management in AS.

Activities

- Construction of super-intensive tree plants for demonstration and evaluation purposes;
- observation and collection of data in super-intensive tree plants on planting techniques and costs, vegetative-productive behavior of cultivars in breeding and in production, quantitative and qualitative parameters of production and costs and effects of the execution of cultivation operations with different methods
- data processing, interpretation and evaluation;
- drafting of technical material for the construction and management of tree plants;
- disclosure of the demonstration fields and the technical material produced.
